KEY RESPONSE MESSAGES

- Political, human rights and socio-economic developments in Venezuela continue to lead to the exodus of millions of refugees and migrants—5.7 million as of September 8, 2021.

- The COVID-19 pandemic has resulted in Venezuelans migrating through unauthorized border crossings. Limited access to health services, including prevention and care for COVID-19; eviction; domestic violence; and difficulties maintaining and generating income lead to more social and economic problems. Xenophobia and stigmatization also are prevalent among host communities. Governments need to ensure humanitarian organizations have access to communities, migrants and refugees to provide basic assistance alongside the governments.

- The primary protection needs for Venezuelan migrants: Immigration regularization, documentation, prevention of evictions, and birth registration. Regarding Gender-Based Violence survivors, needs include: psychosocial support, case management, legal assistance, practical in-kind assistance, livelihoods assistance, family reunification, and alternative care.

- Promising political developments include: thirteen countries reaffirmed their commitment, through the Quito Process, to safe, organized, and regular migration and international protection for Venezuelan refugees. In early 2021, Colombia afforded temporary protected status to all Venezuelan refugees and migrants living in the country. Regionally, all actors agree that the budget need is a central challenge in the region; the 2021 RMRP has a 70.8% budget shortfall, as of September 13, 2021.

- World Vision’s 7-country response aims to raise US$58M to reach 700,000 people from January 2020 through December 2022.

COUNTRY OVERVIEWS

Bolivia: In light of the government’s move to regularize Venezuelan migrants and refugees in the country, World Vision and other NGOs and civil society groups are mobilizing around the R4V platform to respond to their needs.

Brazil: Despite the opening of the Brazil-Venezuela border, people have continued to cross from Venezuela into Brazil through unofficial and more risky routes. As they are without documentation, it is more difficult to access public services and find employment. World Vision is prioritizing, above all, the guarantee of documentation to families with children and adolescents. In addition to documentation services, we are providing language, business and employment courses for migrants and refugees.

Chile: Chile is currently in a “sustainable” phase in its recovery from the COVID-19 pandemic. Unemployment rates are diminishing. But migrants and refugees still are the people most affected by the pandemic, due to the lack of social protections and due to loss of income from work in informal sectors. We have also evidenced the overcrowding and the precarious living conditions in which many live. This includes evictions from homes due to inability to pay rent. Currently, Venezuelans represent the largest migrant group in the country, totaling more than 457,000 people.

Ecuador: Various national and international organizations estimate that as many as 600,000 Venezuelan migrants and refugees currently live in Ecuador—150,000 more than official counts. Most of them still do not have legal status to live and work formally in the country. Since the inauguration of the new President May 24, leaders have established a new vaccination plan, which includes refugees and migrants, as well as renewed efforts to regularize Venezuelans here.

Peru: During the coronavirus pandemic, World Vision Peru has continued working to address needs of the most vulnerable migrant and refugees, including interventions in the following areas: Multipurpose cash; Non-Food Items, providing cleaning kits to feeding centers, and integration, through the USAID-funded project that helps doctors and other professionals get their certification to practice in the country. The strategies are taking into account the current pandemic situation in which we live and seek to reduce the levels of vulnerability of the migrant population.

Venezuela: The Venezuelan economy is still in a downward spiral, mostly because output from the country’s oil industry continues to decrease. Across the country, the dollar has now replaced the Bolivar as the main currency. The regional spillover of Venezuela’s political conflict and economic collapse has caused ties between Colombia and Venezuela to fray as well, amid border closures, a migrant exodus and a rapid increase of humanitarian needs all across the country.

KEY MESSAGES

- On Sept. 1, Colombia rolled out phase two of the new three-part temporary protection law aimed at helping the nearly 2 million Venezuelan migrants and refugees gain legal status and access to public services. About 56% live with irregular status. This makes them more vulnerable to risks of exploitation and violence, and imposes more barriers to their integration into society. Registration for the temporary protected status will be available to Venezuelan migrants and refugees through May 28, 2022 and affords legal status for up to 10 years. It guarantees their rights, ensures access to essential services (housing, health, education or formal employment), and recognizes this situation as a driving force for the country’s development.

- Some of the needs identified in Venezuelan households are: personal protective equipment, personal hygiene kits, support for testing, installation of hydration points for walkers, hand washing and waste disposal systems, housing support, eviction prevention, shelter, family planning alternatives and food. World Vision has worked with other partners to address these needs, however, it is important to continue to advocate, coordinate and support different humanitarian actors.

KEY MESSAGES

- In the framework of International Refugee Day, WVE emphasized how children’s can lives change #InAnInstant. The goal is to change attitudes and understanding toward migrants and those living in dangerous places by bridging the gap between “them and us” and challenging the audience to connect with their stories. The message of “no one is safe until we are all safe” in the context of the pandemic is particularly relevant and helps to promote these dialogues.
- The impact on children and adolescents in a situation of human mobility is much more negative, due to the pre-existing conditions of inequality.
- More than 80% of Venezuelan refugees in host countries lost their source of income by June 2020.
- 1 in 4 children are separated from their mother or father during the pandemic and 34% have no access to health services.

Of the more than 5.6 million Venezuelans who have left their country, Peru has received 1,043,460 of them (GRTM, 2020). Compared to 2019, the number of migrants in Peru has increased by 82.3% (GRTM, 2020). The overall needs of the population have increased as well, particularly regarding access to food, medical care and WASH supplies, documentation and regularization, and protection services for pregnant women, persons with disabilities, and unaccompanied or separated children.

World Vision Peru implements the second phase of the OFDA project (with USAID funds) with emphasis on multi-purpose cash transfers, livelihoods and child protection.

WORLD VISION

The new Law on Migration and Foreigners is in its final phase of approval. It replaces the current law in force since 1975. This regulation creates, among other elements, the National Immigration Service and establishes 13 types of visas for temporary residence (including a family reunification visa and another for humanitarian reasons). It will also require that these visas be requested at the Chilean consulates abroad.

One of the groups most affected by the pandemic in the country has been people with irregular migration status. The pandemic has increased protection risks, especially among children. People in our programs who are in an irregular situation have not been able to access the cash transfer programs crucial to providing economic security to families in times of COVID-19.

Due to the entry of migrants through the Colchane border crossing (bordering Chile with Bolivia), we began to operate from Iquique April 20 with a 3-month pilot plan financed by UNHCR.

At the end of June, the border between Brasil and Venezuela was opened, after being closed for more than one year. Hence, the number of migrants and refugees coming from Venezuela is increasing significantly and the shelters from Roraima are again within 90% of their capacity. Around 40% of the migrants are vulnerable children. Beyond the increasing demand for receptiveness and integration of the migrant population, the situation is aggravated by the worsening socio-economic indicators from Brazil. The unemployment index still is more than 14.7%. Hunger is on the rise, as well as inflation rates.

Aiming to contribute to the training and preparation of women, men and young people for workforce, the ‘Vén, Tu Puedes’ project has invested in training in the Portuguese language and in professional courses for the project’s beneficiaries. In addition, courses in the area of entrepreneurship, articulation of companies that make the hiring and implementation of seed capital viable, and financial transfers for beneficiaries to start their own ventures have been mechanisms to enable the guarantee of human rights for the migrant population.
SECTOR HIGHLIGHTS

INTEGRATION

Interventions include: Orientation sessions for the Brazilian labor market and curriculum development; technical training for entering the Brazilian labor market; entrepreneurial training and savings methodologies (Local Opportunities and Development Group - Gol.I.D Methodology); financial support for Venezuelan migrants and refugees to start or grow their own business; monitoring and advising beneficiaries who received financial support to start or grow their own business; multipurpose cash transfers to support families in situations of social vulnerability, and support processes of internalization, raising awareness and business mobilization for the issue of hiring migrants.

NUTRITION

World Vision has been providing food and nutrition assistance through delivery of family food kits.
