KEY RESPONSE MESSAGES

- Political, human rights and socio-economic developments in Venezuela continue to lead to the exodus of millions of refugees and migrants—more than 6 million as of Feb. 8, 2022.

- The COVID-19 pandemic has resulted in Venezuelans migrating through unauthorized border crossings. Limited access to health services, including prevention and care for COVID-19; eviction; domestic violence; and difficulties maintaining and generating income lead to more social and economic problems. Xenophobia and stigmatization also are prevalent among host communities. Governments need to ensure humanitarian organizations have access to communities, migrants and refugees to provide basic assistance alongside the governments.

- The primary protection needs for Venezuelan migrants include: Immigration regularization, documentation, prevention of evictions, and birth registration. Regarding Gender-Based Violence survivors, needs include: psychosocial support, case management, legal assistance, practical in-kind assistance, livelihoods assistance, family reunification,

- Promising political developments include: thirteen countries reaffirmed their commitment, through the Quito Process, to safe, organized, and regular migration and international protection for Venezuelan refugees. Colombia and other countries continue to make progress in efforts to grant temporary protected status to Venezuelan refugees and migrants living within their borders. Regionally, all actors agree that the budget need is a central challenge; the 2022 RMRP has a 64% budget shortfall, as of Feb. 10, 2022.

- World Vision’s regional humanitarian response to the Venezuela crisis aims to raise US$32M in 2022 to reach more than 1.1 million people in 7 countries.

COUNTRY OVERVIEWS

- Brazil: Despite the opening of the Brazil-Venezuela border, people have continued to cross from Venezuela into Brazil through unofficial and more risky routes. As they are without documentation, it is more difficult to access public services and find employment. World Vision is prioritizing, above all, the guarantee of documentation to families with children and adolescents. In addition to documentation services, we are providing language, business and employment courses for migrants and refugees.

- Chile: On December 19, 2021, Gabriel Boric was elected president. The government plan to address migration issues focuses on creating safe, orderly, regular and respectful migration policy to champion human rights. One specific action being considered is ratifying the Marrakech Pact to review current migration policies and processes. Another action being considered is to review national immigration system to ensure consistent and fair implementation of policies and processes.

- Colombia: Even a year after the start of the Temporary Protection Statute announced by Colombia to regularize refugees and migrants from Venezuela in the country, there are more than 296,000 people who have already received the document that regularizes their stay in the country for 10 years. This great inclusion effort has also sent an important message against discrimination, as a policy and program that fosters cohesion is essential to reduce misperceptions, tackling stigma and xenophobia.

- Ecuador: Various national and international organizations estimate that as many as 600,000 Venezuelan migrants and refugees currently live in Ecuador—150,000 more than official counts. Most of them still do not have legal status to live and work formally in the country. Since the inauguration of the new President last May, leaders established a vaccination plan, which includes refugees and migrants, as well as renewed efforts to regularize Venezuelans here.

- Peru: During the coronavirus pandemic, World Vision Peru has continued working to address needs of the most vulnerable migrant and refugees, including interventions in the following areas: Multipurpose cash; Non-Food Items, providing cleaning kits to feeding centers, and integration, through the USAID-funded project that helps doctors and other professionals get their certification to practice in the country. The strategies are taking into account the current pandemic situation in which we live and seek to reduce the levels of vulnerability of the migrant population.

- Venezuela: The Venezuelan economy is still in a downward spiral, mostly because output from the country’s oil industry continues to decrease. Across the country, the dollar has now replaced the Bolivar as the main currency. The regional spillover of Venezuela’s political conflict and economic collapse has caused ties between Colombia and Venezuela to fray as well, amid border closures, a migrant exodus and a rapid increase of humanitarian needs all across the country.

COUNTRY OVERVIEW

KEY MESSAGES

- On Sept. 1, 2021 Colombia rolled out phase two of the new three-part temporary protection law aimed at helping the nearly 2 million Venezuelan migrants and refugees gain legal status and access to public services. About 56% live with irregular status. This makes them more vulnerable to risks of exploitation and violence, and imposes more barriers to their integration into society. Registration for the temporary protected status will be available to Colombian migrants and refugees through May 28, 2022 and affords legal status for up to 10 years. It guarantees their rights, ensures access to essential services (housing, health, education or formal employment), and recognizes this situation as a driving force for the country’s development.

- According to official figures, around 1.8 million Venezuelan refugees and migrants have entered Colombia, many of them without sufficient economic resources and family support. Many are living in areas that are generally not suitable for urban development by state institutions or humanitarian response organizations. This causes the emergence of settlements built by individuals outside the established mechanisms. These precarious settlements are made up of inadequate housing materials and services. Despite the clear lack of food, as well as health, water and sanitation services.

CASH-BASED PROGRAMMING

Within the WFP, BHA, and World Bank-funded project, we reached 6,328 households in Bogota, Soacha, Cali and Bucaramanga through delivery of multipurpose cash transfers worth USD $122.

EDUCATION

348 migrant children graduated in Norte de Santander. They obtained their diploma thanks to the learning acceleration and school re-enforcement models within the framework of the Education Cannot Wait project in Norte de Santander. These children were too old to enter educational institutions or had low academic performance due to the negative effects of the migration crisis.

SHELTER

‘BERLIN HEALTH CARE CENTER (CAS): Within the framework of the response carried out by WVC and the Colombian Red Cross, 1,168 Venezuelan migrants who transit between the border and the interior of the country benefited from lodging services, hot meals, re-establishment of contacts, and health care.

FOOD SECURITY/NUTRITION

Each month we are reaching 32,520 people through the WFP project in Cúcuta. Key components of the project include: Nutritional Education, which trained 1,248 attendees, and nutritional screenings which served 897 children from 0 to 5 years of age.

COUNTRY OVERVIEW

KEY MESSAGES

- In the framework of International Refugee Day, WVE emphasized how children’s can lives change #InAnInstant. The goal is to change attitudes and understanding toward migrants and those living in dangerous places by bridging the gap between “them and us” and challenging the audience to connect with their stories. The message of “no one is safe until we are all safe” in the context of the pandemic is particularly relevant and helps to promote these dialogues.

- The impact on children and adolescents in a situation of human mobility is much more negative, due to the pre-existing conditions of inequality.

- More than 80% of Venezuelan refugees in host countries lost their source of income by June 2020.

- 1 in 4 children are separated from their mother or father during the pandemic and 34% have no access to health services.

WASH

In order to contribute to access to safe water, water tanks and purifiers were installed at strategic points (canteens, shelters, lodges and hydration points) on the southern border of the country. These activities have been implemented through local partners who have a permanent presence in the intervention sites.

NFI Non-Food Items

Through the provision of biosafety kits, we supported the hygiene and care of people in mobility situations. Activities carried out with the support of local partners in the territories.

SHELTER

In this quarter we have supported with sleeping and kitchen kits, which have contributed to improve the habitability processes of migrant families and those in mobility, mainly in the southern border (Huaquillas, Machala, Macará) in Ecuador. These activities have been developed in coordination with partner organizations with presence in the local territories intervened.

Of the more than 6 million Venezuelans who have left their country, Peru has received 1,043,460 of them (GRTM, 2020). Compared to 2019, the number of migrants in Peru has increased by 82.3% (GRTM, 2020). The overall needs of the population have increased as well, particularly regarding access to food, medical care and WASH supplies, documentation and regularization, and protection services for pregnant women, persons with disabilities, and unaccompanied or separated children.

At the end of 2021, WVP completed the execution of a 15-month emergency project with USAID that sought to meet the food-assistance needs of vulnerable people in Peru. At project-end in December, the cumulative total of people reached is 53,655 out of 53,414 originally targeted. That’s 100.45% of the target. As an extension, we are planning to provide multipurpose cash assistance to 23,885 people and regular hot meals to 4,230 people between October 2021 and August 2022.

SECTOR HIGHLIGHTS

CASH-BASED PROGRAMMING
Between October and January through the BHA phase 3 project, participants have benefited from multipurpose cash in monthly installments, which allows them to cover their basic needs in food, health, education, others. During the registration of participants, the children have participated in playful educational activities. These activities were enabled through the WFP and BHA projects.

FOOD SECURITY/LIVELIHOODS
Between October and January through the BHA phase 3 project, participants have benefited from hot meal service through soup kitchens that are monitored to provide nutritionally balanced meals.

INTEGRATION
The Sesamo Project has deployed activities to protect migrant children, mainly, with playful methodologies typical of Sesame Street. Such activities teach children to have healthy hygiene practices and learn new ways to educate themselves while having fun. Between October and December, new participants in the BHA phase 2 project have been trained in soft skills development and basic knowledge for entrepreneurship. In addition, former participants have received technical assistance in E-commerce and Excel for business. A group of them have even received funds as capital for the development of their businesses.

COUNTRY OVERVIEW

KEY MESSAGES

Besides the increasing demand for receptiveness and integration of the migrant population, the worsening socio-economic indicators from Brazil aggravate the situation. The national unemployment index still is over 13%. In addition, the country is again on the hunger map and is experiencing uncontrolled rising inflation rate. To respond to this, WVB intensified the activities from the project Ven Tú Puedes, guaranteeing a 2-year second phase of the project and concluded other minor projects dedicated to mitigation of the pandemic effects to the migrant population.

The ‘Ven, Tú Puedes’ project aims to contribute to the training and preparation of women, men and young people for workforce. It has invested in training in the Portuguese language and in professional courses for the project’s beneficiaries. In addition, courses in the area of entrepreneurship, articulation of companies that make the hiring and implementation of seed capital viable, and financial transfers for beneficiaries to start their own ventures have been mechanisms to enable the guarantee of human rights for the migrant population.
