

Key messages

- Internally Displaced Persons: Renewed inter-communal violence in Ethiopia's Oromia and Southern Nations, Nationalities, and Peoples (SNNP) regions has displaced nearly a million people since June 2018. The IDPs are currently sheltering in open halls of public institutions such as schools, vocational centres, and others dispersed among host communities near the border between Oromia and Somali regions. More than half of the IDPs are children and are suffering from malnutrition and other communicable illnesses.
- Flood alert: Nearly 2.5 million people are at risk of flooding as average to above-average kiremt (June-to-September) rains could result in flooding in the low-lying areas of Ethiopia, the UN warns. On July 7, the government and humanitarian partners released the national flood contingency plan for the kiremt season that maps out flood-prone areas, identifies mitigation and early warning actions to reduce the humanitarian impact, and priority response activities to be carried out by relevant sectors in the event of flooding.
- Food insecurity in Amhara: The preliminary report for 2018 Food Security and Agriculture Assessment shows that the belg (February to May) rains were between normal to below normal in most parts of Amhara region. Leading to depressed harvests and the deterioration of livestock herds. The worst hit areas were in Delanta (South Wollo zone), Angot, Gazo Belay and Wadla (North Wollo zone) woredas.
- Improved food security expected in Somali Region: Consecutive above- average rains in the Somali region could contribute to improved food security conditions, particularly among pastoralists communities.

Gaps and needs

- Funding is insufficient in critical sectors such as education, protection and health. World Vision hopes to secure more funding to meet the huge needs of the conflict-affected IDPs.
- World Vision is seeking funds too provide critical health services for IDPs affected in Gedio and West Guji.
- Low harvests and the deteriorating conditions of livestock in food insecure regions such as Amhara is threatening the food and nutritional status of children and their families necessitating urgent support to mitigate further harm.
